Civilians view career online

Air Force civilians now have the ability to view their own career information online from any Internet-connected computer, according to Air Force Personnel Center officials at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas. The virtual Civilian Career Brief offers information that might help in career planning like current position data, pay and benefits, appraisals and education. People can access the vCCB through the AFPC secure Web site at www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/afpcscure/default.asp. New vCCB users will need to establish an account before using the service.

Congress receives tanker report

Air Force officials took the next step in replacing its 43-year-old KC-135 Stratotanker fleet Monday by sending Congress a report outlining the proposed lease of Boeing KC-767A tankers. Under the lease, 100 aircraft would be delivered five years sooner than later under a traditional procurement plan, according to officials. "This aircraft will transform the Air Force tanker force," said Dr. Marvin Sambur, assistant secretary of the Air Force for acquisition. "This lease marks the important beginning of the urgent re-capitalization to the KC-135 fleet — a very successful, but rapidly aging, achievement of the Eisenhower administration."

Airmen can carry over more leave

Some active-duty airmen will be allowed to accumulate more than 60 days of annual leave after the fiscal year ends, according to Air Force Personnel Center officials at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas. The airmen must have been unable to take leave because they were supporting contingency operations. Those affected can retain up to 90 days of leave until the end of fiscal 2004.

SARS tests are negative so far

The initial test results of the laboratory samples taken from the first 10 people at Dyess Air Force Base, Texas, who may have been exposed to Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome are negative for the virus, according to health professionals with the 7th Medical Group.

Staying vigilant

Soldiers secure a street in Amiriyah, Iraq, during an early morning raid recently. The soldiers are assigned to Company A, 3rd Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division. The company conducts raids to deter the enemy, search for illegal weapons and stop criminal activity.

Pulling weeds, cleaning windows and scrubbing kitchens aren't usually considered the most exciting ways to spend a weekend.

However, 12 members of the Wolf Pack decided to take time out of their busy schedules to volunteer to perform some of these not-so-exciting household chores at the Kunsan Care Home for the Disabled Saturday.

Members from the 8th Fighter Wing, along with 26 people from the Republic of Korea air force, spent part of their weekend improving the appearance of the facility as well as playing with some of the disabled residents, said Ms. Rosemary Song, community relations specialist.

"Since February 2003, around 70 Wolf Pack members have volunteered to help out at the facility on a monthly basis," said Song. "These people could be out partying or doing other things, but instead, they have donated their personal time to get their hands dirty, which is what volunteering is all about."

"With all my heart, I really appreciate the Air Force people volunteering every month here at the care home," said Ha, Jea-Goo, the facility's director. "Their support and dedication gives them [the residents] hope for their life. [United States Forces Korea] members are so sacrificing and open-minded, it's great."

Wolf Pack members from units all over the base came out to participate in the event.

"I'm happy to get the opportunity to interact with the local nationals and experience the Korean culture," said Master Sgt. Alonzo Holland, 8th Logistics Readiness Squadron, who has helped out at the home three times in his four months at Kunsan. "I like to see the light in their [the residents] faces when we're here. They have such limited interaction with other people so it's nice to volunteer."

For one Wolf Pack member, volunteering was not a new thing, but helping out at the disabled home was.

"This is my first time on this project," said Master Sgt. Chris Colby, 8th Mission Support Group. "This is my third remote at Kunsan and there are a lot more community projects going on since I left."

"What's so wonderful about this volunteer opportunity is that anyone can do the cleaning part, but our troops go out there, not just to clean up the facility, but to share their love," said Song. "Most of the time these people are forgotten by society, but just being with them makes them happy. We always are looking for people with positive attitudes and enthusiasm to volunteer and help out with these types of events."

For more information on volunteering, call the 8th Fighter Wing Public Affairs office at 782-4705.

Integrity holds Air Force together

By Lt. Col. David Dales
8th Staff Judge Advocate commander

In any operation or military environment there is nothing quite as important as integrity. But, it is even more important in an environment like the one in which we are operating.

Integrity, it has been said, is the foundation or backbone of our military service. But what is integrity?

At its heart, it's being honest with others as well as ourselves. It's doing the right thing at all times, not just when someone is watching. A person of integrity is a person whose private person equals or exceeds his public person. A person of integrity has a well-functioning moral compass.

I'm not saying you must be perfect in order to have integrity — you must simply be able to tell the difference between right and wrong and model your behavior accordingly. A person of integrity doesn't change his core beliefs simply because they won't get caught or because he's deployed or on a remote assignment. If it's wrong it's wrong, whether you are at home or remote.

As a young defense counsel, I had been tasked with representing a well-respected senior NCO who had been charged with over a dozen offenses. The jury acquitted him of the vast majority of the charges including, what I saw as, the more serious of the charges.

Going into sentencing we were pretty confident of a light sentence, given his 25 years of service and the fact the serious charges had been dispensed of earlier. To the surprise of everyone in the courtroom, including the prosecutor, the members returned a sentence, which included a bad conduct discharge, reduction to E-1, and a short period of confinement. He had lost everything, his retirement, his career, his dignity, everything.

— Lt. Col. David Dales
8th Staff Judge Advocate commander

A few months later, I happened to run into the president of the board. He asked me what I thought of the sentence. I responded I was shocked given the many years of fantastic service of my client, and the fact he had been acquitted of the serious charges. The colonel said something I will never forget.

He said, "Dave, he may have been acquitted of the charges carrying the serious jail time, but it's the integrity issues that always kill you. Those are the things that make you great or make you fail. Those are the things that make you up as a person. If you cheat on the basic integrity issues, how can you be trusted in the face of real adversity? That's what we are here to do, respond in the face of adversity."

In the years since then, I have seen these words borne out time and time again. I have seen really "good" people throw their careers, families and lives away by doing something stupid — by compromising their integrity.

My father used to tell me you could do about anything you wanted in life and largely others wouldn't interfere with your decisions. He used to say the difficulty faced by all of us is we are largely left to police ourselves. He would tell me the litmus test happened every morning. If you had difficulty looking at the person staring back at you from the mirror, you probably needed to change some of your actions. This may seem simplistic but at its base it's all about knowing what's right and wrong and acting accordingly.

In the military — especially in a remote environment — integrity is what holds us together. It allows for mutual trust and ultimately mission accomplishment because you know the other person will do the right thing. There is no room for compromise of integrity in word or deed. Lives depend upon it.

Wolf speaks on upcoming exercise

By Col. Robin Rand
8th Fighter Wing commander

Next week is the first exercise for the Wolf Pack since the Operational Readiness Inspection in April, and it is the first one for many of us here. Let's Get ready to rumble! Before we start, I'm asking everyone to adhere to the following guidance.

First, even though we have a lot of new people since the April ORI, I want everyone to put their game faces on and work hard. We are lethal warriors and need to focus our complete attention on the Wolf Pack combat mission these next few days. You have heard it before, but we need to train like we plan to fight.

Those of you who were here for the April Pacific Air Forces ORI need to help the new troops. Teach them what they need to do to carry out the 8th Fighter Wing's mission of "defend the base (Hooah!), accept follow on forces, and take the fight north!"

Second, we will walk before we run. Keep in mind that if something doesn't look, feel, smell, or taste right, then it probably isn't right. Take the required actions to fix the problem. If you don't know how to fix the problem, then ask the question by bringing it to your supervisor's or an exercise evaluator's attention. We're all here to learn and improve our war fighting skills.

Third, be smart and be diligent. Remember, we are all safety officers and have the right to stop harmful or dangerous acts — regardless of rank.

Ensure you are drinking plenty of water. It's hot and humid outside, and it will be worse in chemical gear. Make sure you and your coworkers are wearing the proper safety equipment like reflective belts when you're outside at night. We're still in the 101 Critical Days of Summer, and we don't want any Wolf Pack members hurt.

I have every confidence we will do well during next week's combat employment readiness exercise. Good hunting and "May God have mercy on the Wolf Packs prey."

The Wolf Pack bids a fond farewell to Col. Stuart Johnson, 8th Fighter Wing vice commander.

Travel pay changes take effect

By Senior Master Sgt. Gregory Summers
15th Comptroller Squadron

Beginning Tuesday, two important changes will be made to the temporary duty travel pay business.

Headquarters Pacific Air Forces and Hickam Air Force Base will implement a mandatory split-disbursement and a supervisory or approving official review of all travel settlement claims, according to 2nd Lt. Peter Smith, 15th Comptroller Squadron deputy Financial Services officer.

The first change, a mandatory split-disbursement on all travel settlement claims, requires the sum of all charges made on a Government Travel Card (GTC) during official travel be properly annotated on the traveler's settlement voucher, Smith said.

If the traveler is unsure of what charges have been made, he said, the unit GTC Agency Program Coordinator can be contacted to obtain this information or the cardholder can contact Bank of America via the toll-free number listed on the back of their card.

"It should be noted at this time, mandatory split disbursement pertains to military members only," he said. The Defense Finance and Accounting Service is developing the implementation process for civilian personnel.

Once they have completed this, the finance officer said, the Air Force will satisfy the appropriate labor obligations and then issue implementation guidance.

"This change will go a long way toward reducing our GTC delinquency rates and will help reduce the delinquency management efforts currently being expended by unit APCs, commanders, first sergeants, supervisors," Smith said.

The second change, the supervisory or approving official review of all travel settlement claims will be through one of two avenues, he said.

For Non-Defense Travel System - Limited settlements, either the supervisor or approving official will review, sign, and date all settlement vouchers for military and civilian personnel, he said. All DTS-L claims will be reviewed systematically under current procedures.

This change will provide an additional deterrent to fraudulent settlement claims, Smith said.

FINI FLIGHT: Col. Stuart Johnson, 8th Fighter Wing vice commander, gets hosed down after returning from his final flight at Kunsan Tuesday by the fire protection flight and pilots from the 35th Fighter Squadron. Other members of the wing's leadership also were out there to celebrate his final flight. Johnson will assume duties as an Air Force ROTC instructor at the University of Texas in Austin. He will be replaced as "Wolf II" by Col. William Coutts July 25.

WOLF PACK Crime Watch

July 7:
Damage to government property — The security forces control center received a call the fire door window on the north side of building 1303 had been damaged during the weekend.

July 8:
Theft of private property — A senior airman reported to the SFCC his motive gray and silver bicycle missing from building 1407.

Theft of private property — A staff sergeant reported to the SFCC his silver and blue bicycle was missing from building 620.

Lost property — A master sergeant reported to the SFCC that he had lost his military identification card.

July 10:
Theft of private property — A staff sergeant reported to the SFCC her bowling ball was missing from the bowling alley. The staff sergeant had left the bowling ball there June 10 and when she returned June 12 it was missing.

Government owned vehicle damaged — An airman reported to the SFCC that while driving back from post relief in a 24-passenger bus, he struck a tree branch. Damage to the vehicle consisted of a broken top passenger mirror and bent middle and bottom mirrors.

July 11:
Damage to government property — A staff sergeant notified the SFCC there was a crack in the radar dome of AIM-120.

Theft of private property — A senior airman notified the SFCC a bag of quarters valued at $350 was missing from his dorm room.

Article 92, Failure to obey order or regulation, underage consumption of alcohol — A private first class had an open container of alcohol outside of Paradise Club in America Town. A security forces officer asked the private for his military identification card and verified the private was under age.

July 12:
Patrol response — A security forces officer notified the SFCC four individuals had parked their vehicle adjacent to HAS 23 and crossed into the free zone. The security forces officers on the scene challenged the individuals while two more officers were dispatched. Once the dispatched officers arrived on scene, the four individuals were separated and questioned. All four individuals stated they had not realized they were not authorized to go into the free zone from that location.

Article 117, provoking speeches and gestures and article 128, assault — The SFCC received call that a fight was in progress in building 1027. When security forces arrived on the scene, they were informed that the people involved in the fight had fled the scene. A security forces officer was dispatched to the back of building 1027 where he caught an airman first class who was placed into custody. Two other security officers were dispatched to find the other airman. When they found the airman, they placed him into custody.

July 13:
Escort violation — An airman called the SFCC to report an escort violation. Security forces were dispatched and met a first lieutenant who violated escort privileges by having a guest on the installation for more than 24 hours. The lieutenant was briefed on proper escort procedures and released.

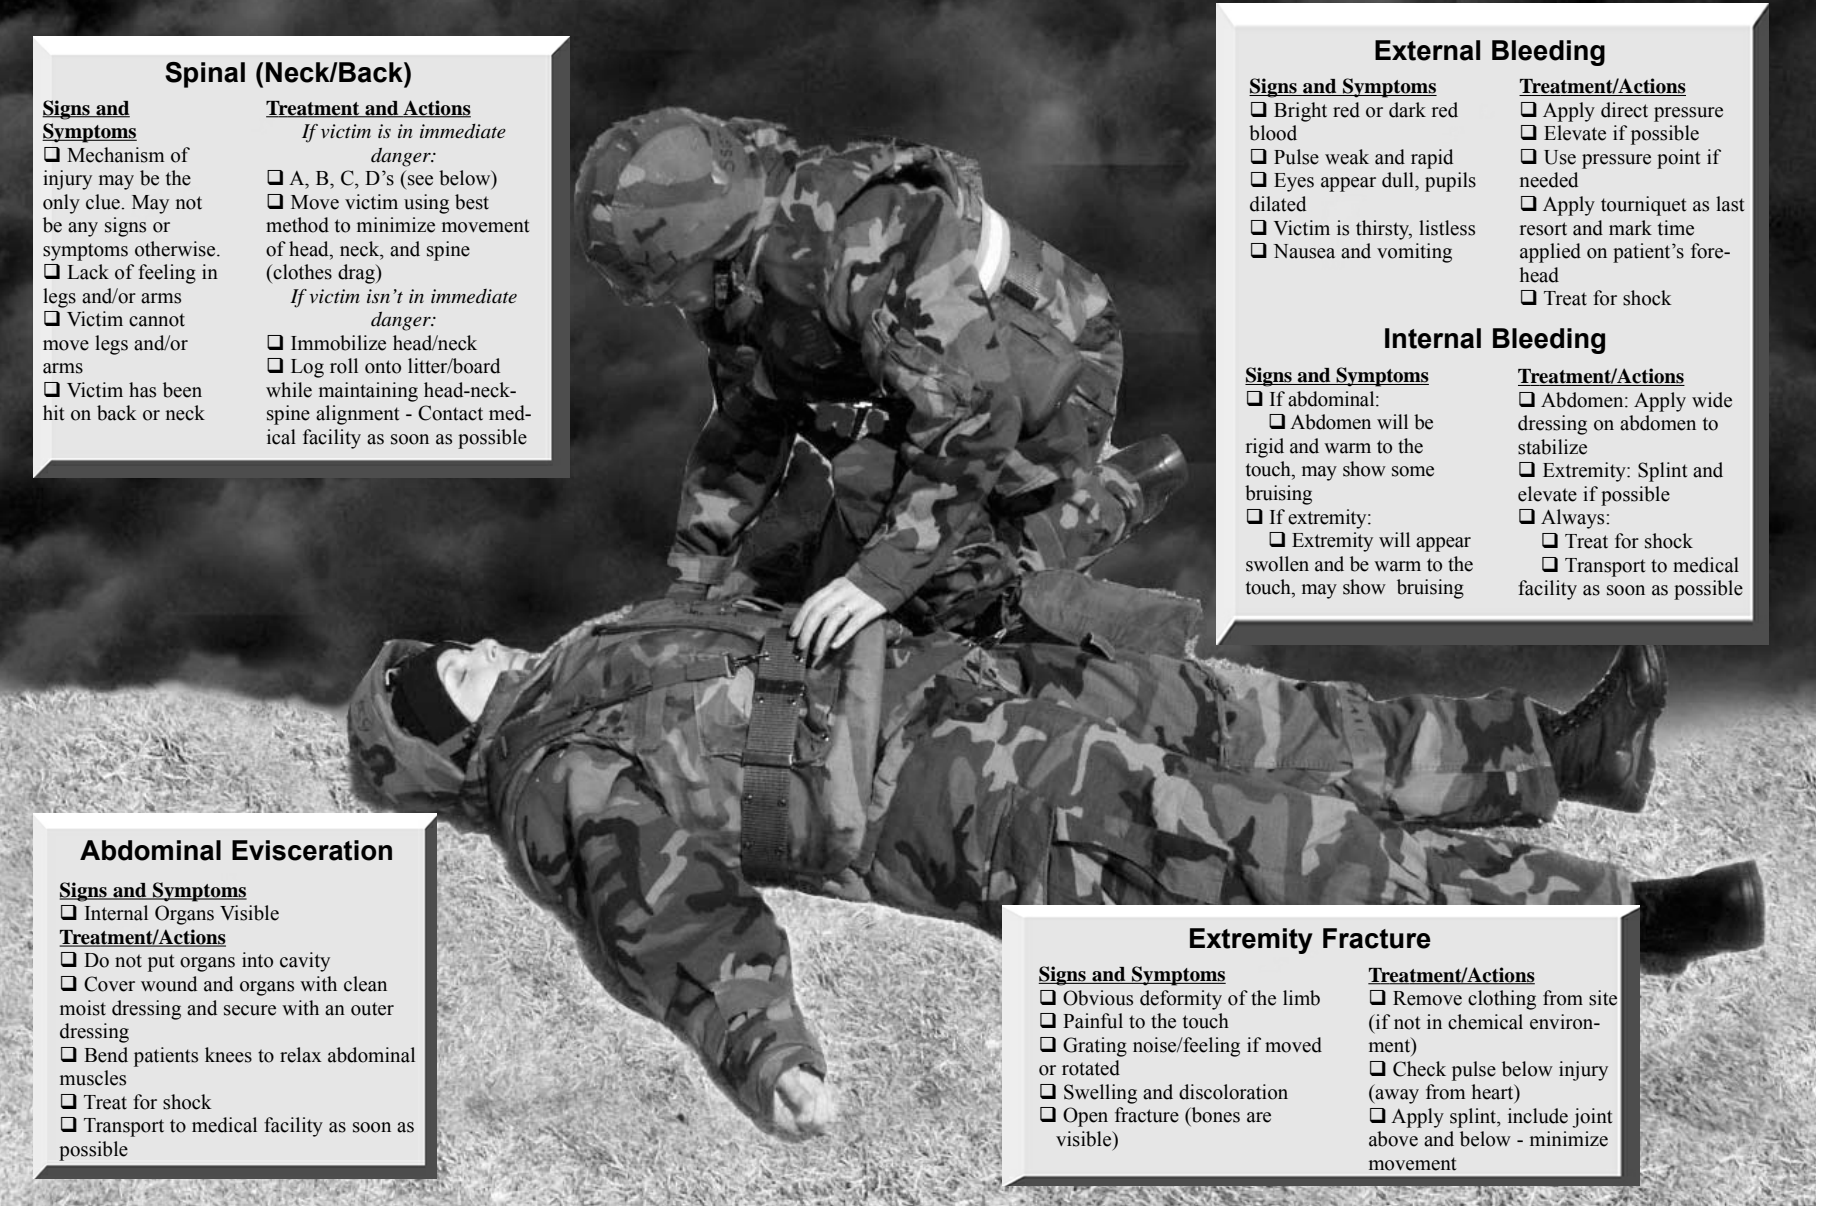

Found property — An airman first class reported to the SFCC he had found a Common Access Card, temporary Loring Club card, video box office card, a Visa debit card, and a Kay Jewelers card, all belonging to a senior airman. The senior airman was notified.

SELF AID BUDDY CARE

Spinal (Neck/Back)

Signs and Symptoms

- ❑ Mechanism of injury may be the only clue. May not be any signs or symptoms otherwise.
- ❑ Lack of feeling in legs and/or arms
- ❑ Victim cannot move legs and/or arms
- ❑ Victim has been hit on back or neck

Treatment and Actions

- If victim is in immediate danger:*
- ❑ A, B, C, D's (see below)
- ❑ Move victim using best method to minimize movement of head, neck, and spine (clothes drag)
- If victim isn't in immediate danger:*
- ❑ Immobilize head/neck
- ❑ Log roll onto litter/board while maintaining head-neck-spine alignment - Contact medical facility as soon as possible

External Bleeding

Signs and Symptoms

- ❑ Bright red or dark red blood
- ❑ Pulse weak and rapid
- ❑ Eyes appear dull, pupils dilated
- ❑ Victim is thirsty, listless
- ❑ Nausea and vomiting

Treatment/Actions

- ❑ Apply direct pressure
- ❑ Elevate if possible
- ❑ Use pressure point if needed
- ❑ Apply tourniquet as last resort and mark time applied on patient's forehead
- ❑ Treat for shock

Internal Bleeding

Signs and Symptoms

- ❑ If abdominal:
 - ❑ Abdomen will be rigid and warm to the touch, may show some bruising
- ❑ If extremity:
 - ❑ Extremity will appear swollen and be warm to the touch, may show bruising

Treatment/Actions

- ❑ Abdomen: Apply wide dressing on abdomen to stabilize
- ❑ Extremity: Splint and elevate if possible
- ❑ Always:
 - ❑ Treat for shock
 - ❑ Transport to medical facility as soon as possible

Abdominal Evisceration

Signs and Symptoms

- ❑ Internal Organs Visible

Treatment/Actions

- ❑ Do not put organs into cavity
- ❑ Cover wound and organs with clean moist dressing and secure with an outer dressing
- ❑ Bend patients knees to relax abdominal muscles
- ❑ Treat for shock
- ❑ Transport to medical facility as soon as possible

Extremity Fracture

Signs and Symptoms

- ❑ Obvious deformity of the limb
- ❑ Painful to the touch
- ❑ Grating noise/feeling if moved or rotated
- ❑ Swelling and discoloration
- ❑ Open fracture (bones are visible)

Treatment/Actions

- ❑ Remove clothing from site (if not in chemical environment)
- ❑ Check pulse below injury (away from heart)
- ❑ Apply splint, include joint above and below - minimize movement

❑ ABCD Steps

The following steps should be done first when encountering an injured person:
A: Establish an open airway.
B: Ensure breathing.
C: Stop bleeding to support circulation. Place dressings over open wounds and apply pressure. Use a tourniquet only as a last resort and mark the time it was applied on the victim's forehead.
D: Prevent further disability. Immobilize the person's neck or spinal injuries and splint obvious limb deformities.

❑ Burn injuries

Minor burns (First degree burns): The signs or symptoms of a minor burn include reddening of the skin. Treat by stopping the burning process with water, covering the burn with a clean dressing, keeping the patient warm and transporting to a medical facility as soon as possible.

Major burns (Second and third degree burns): The signs or symptoms of a major burn include blistering of the skin or charred skin. Treat by stopping the burning process with water, covering with a clean dressing, keeping the patient warm, treating for shock and transporting to a medical facility as soon as possible.

Possible electric burns: Before treating, ensure it is safe to touch the victim. Then locate the entrance and exit wound, cover with a dry dressing, treat for shock and transport to a medical facility as soon as possible.

Possible chemical burn: Before treating, ensure it is safe to touch the victim. Flush with large amounts of water. The exception is a lime burn. Lime should be brushed off. Remove clothing if practical, treat for shock and transport to a medical facility as soon as possible.

Possible radiation burns: Remove the patient from the source of radiation. Treat any other obvious injuries, treat for shock and transport to a medical treatment facility as soon as possible.

❑ Shock

The signs and symptoms of shock include: listlessness; anxiety; cold, clammy, pale blue skin; breathing is shallow, labored and rapid; eyes appear dull, pupils dilated; thirsty; and nausea or vomiting. Treatment actions include: ensure A, B, C, Ds are established; control obvious bleeding; elevate feet if there is no head wound; splint fractures; prevent loss of body heat; give the victim nothing to eat or drink; if unconscious, place the victim on his side; and transport to a medical treatment facility as soon as possible.

❑ Heat-related injuries

Heat exhaustion: The signs and symptoms of heat exhaustion include abdominal cramps; pale face; dizziness, faintness or weakness; loss of appetite; nausea or vomiting; profuse sweating; moist, cool skin; and a weak pulse. Treatment actions include treating for shock; lying down in a cool area; loosening or opening clothing; cooling the body by sprinkling water and fanning, but not to the point of shivering; giving the victim water to drink if conscious, but add two tablespoons of salt to one canteen; and seek medical attention.

Heat stroke: The signs and symptoms of heat stroke include headache; dizziness; read face and skin; hot, dry skin; no sweating; strong, rapid pulse; and high body temperature or hot to the touch. Treatments for shock are; lying down in a cool area; loosening or opening clothing; cooling body by sprinkling water and fanning, but not to the point of shivering; giving the victim water to drink if conscious, but add two tablespoons of salt to one canteen; and seek medical attention.

❑ Cold-related injuries

Frost bite: The signs and symptoms of frostbite include affected area hard, cold and insensitive to touch; area appears white or mottled blue-white; and may become red and painful when warmed. Treatment actions include removing constricting clothing from area; warm the area carefully; do not rub; and transport to a medical facility as soon as possible.

Hypothermia: The signs and symptoms of hypothermia include apathy and poor judgment; drowsiness; rapid pulse; shivering; and no shivering in later stages. Treatment actions include handling the patient carefully; establishing A, B, C, Ds; preventing loss of additional body heat; transporting to a medical facility as soon as possible.

ORI Dorm Play:

- ❑ Troops must play until physically crossing the door's threshold
- ❑ That means processing into the dorm like any other facility
- ❑ Check M9 tape, use hand and foot troughs (bleach first), decon metal areas of door, put protective mask on if entering non-porous dorms

USING TRANSITION POINTS:

HIGHER MOPP TO A LOWER MOPP

Photos by Staff Sgt. Jeremiah Erickson

STEP 1: Upon approaching a transition point, check ground crew ensemble for contamination.

STEP 2a: If contamination is found, use M291 or M295 kit to decontaminate any liquid contamination on the ground crew ensemble or equipment items and proceed to the nearest contamination control area.

STEP 2b: If contamination is not found, process through the boot and glove wash stations. Use the bleach first, then the water.

STEP 3: Proceed through zone transition point to destination using paved surfaces.

LOWER MOPP TO A HIGHER MOPP

STEP 1: Approach the transition point and read what MOPP level you're about to enter

STEP 2: Assume the proper equipment configuration for the higher MOPP level

STEP 3: Attach M9 paper to the ground crew ensemble as required, including both arms and both legs.

10/24 Rule

Phase 1 — When personnel are working with contaminated equipment, they will be in MOPP 4 when within 10 feet of the asset for the first 24 hours after the attack.

Phase 2 — After the first 24 hours after an attack, MOPP 4 requirements within 10-foot radius is terminated. Personnel should continue to handle assets with gloves, regardless of time after the attack.

Apply the 10/24 rule when working with:

Glass — windows, vehicle windshields

Stainless Steel — tools, unpainted bumpers, door handles, steel buildings, vehicles

Post-Attack Alarm Black release conditions

Initial Release — Only reconnaissance teams and airfield damage assessment teams allowed outside.

Limited Release — Only the wing operations center can authorize movement in Phase II and only survival recovery center directed facility sweep teams will conduct post-attack recon sweeps to evaluate specific installation locations.

General Release — Movement allowed as directed by the SRC. All facility sweep teams will conduct post attack recon sweeps.

Field gear, load bearing equipment

Field gear consists of body armor and load bearing equipment.

Body armor — flack vest and helmet — are intended to protect the larger percentage of the wearers’ skull and torso from secondary fragmentation or falling debris, caused by explosive blast. Whenever an attack is imminent or in-progress, body armor will be worn. Field gear will be worn outdoors as required unless otherwise directed.

Load bearing equipment consists of, at a minimum, the web belt and canteen. LBE is intended to carry additional items without encumbering the uniform or chemical protective overgarment.

SAFETY FIRST

During combat — real or simulated — a sense of urgency is critical. While performing tasks in elevated MOPP levels, everyone needs to use common sense and operational risk management practices to keep themselves healthy and combat ready.

❑ Reflective gear — Reflective belts and accessories must be worn by anyone exposed to vehicle or aircraft traffic during the hours of darkness, whether in parking lots, walking on sidewalks or working on the flightline. Reflective belts should be worn to make the wearer visible from all sides.

❑ Pick-up truck/Bongo passengers — It’s acceptable for simulated wounded, contaminated or deceased personnel to ride in pick-up truck beds, but they must be fully seated in the bed of the truck, and may not sit on the bed rails, wheel wells or up against the tailgate.

❑ Driving in MOPP gear — Operating vehicles while wearing MOPP gear doesn’t eliminate the requirement to wear seat belts. This has been an area of concern during past exercises.

Vision is impaired while wearing masks and helmets, and wear of chemical protective overboots may make it difficult to use gas and brake pedals.

Weather also plays a large part in the safe operation of vehicles during exercises. Inclement weather may require slower speeds when in MOPP gear.

Because of limited vision of both the vehicle operator and pedestrians, all tactical vehicles (Humvees, M113 tracked vehicles, etc.) should reduce their speed. Remember, personnel driving vehicles in MOPP gear must have an Air Force Form 483.

❑ The hazards of MOPP gear — Since you’ll have restricted movement and a lack of a sense of feel, slow down and make small deliberate movements, rather than normal, fluid movements.

Be aware of your footing. Many exercise-related mishaps deal with slips, trips or falls. Bulky overboots can cause you to misjudge your steps — especially when climbing stairs.

Lift carefully. Pay attention to your body armor’s extra weight when lifting.

Back injuries occur because people fail to take into account the extra 30 pounds on their back when they lift normal loads.

❑ Hydration — Making sure people properly hydrate is also an area where emphasis is required. Canteens should be filled with water only. Drink at least eight ounces of water per waking hour.

❑ Fatigue — Fatigue becomes a factor during multi-day exercises where personnel are working much longer or other than normal shifts.

The time it takes an individual to become accustomed to a new shift varies from person to person and supervisors need to be aware of this to take adequate precautions to prevent fatigue-related mishaps.

Protecting military information
It’s everyone’s responsibility

Operations Security — OPSEC is the process of denying adversaries information about friendly capabilities and intentions by identifying, controlling, and protecting indicators associated with planning and conducting military operations. There is no acceptable level of vulnerability to friendly information. Refer to Air Force Instruction 10-1101, Operations Security, for more information.

Information Security — The Information Security Program efficiently and effectively protects U.S. Air Force information by placing authority into the hands at the lowest levels possible; encouraging risk management principles; focusing on identifying and protecting only information that requires protection; integrating security procedures into business processes so they become transparent; and ensuring everyone understands their security roles and responsibilities and takes them seriously. Refer to AFI 31-401, Information Security Program Management, for more information.

Communications Security — COMSEC material is an item that secures or authenticates telecommunications. using unsecured COMSEC equipment to discuss even portions of what is going on offers the enemy, who is listening, enough information to impact military operations. In other words, this is releasing essential elements of friendly information. Safeguarding, controlling, and possibly destroying COMSEC material is everyone’s business.

EXERCISE

REPORTING LAW OF ARMED CONFLICT VIOLATIONS

During contingencies, troops follow rules known as the Law of Armed Conflict. These rules govern everything from what targets can be bombed to the treatment of prisoners of war. It's important for troops to follow these rules and also to report any violations they witness.

LOAC violations are criminal acts. Like any other crime, troops must do everything within reason to keep them from happening. If they do occur, immediately report each possible LOAC violation, regardless of who committed it.

Reporting a violation as soon as possible is a rule that applies to every military member, regardless of his or her rank, organization, or duty. It also doesn't matter who is committing the offense, even if Americans are violating LOAC, it must be reported.

Failing to report a LOAC violation is also a violation. It also brings with it other problems. If a troop watches one of his friends mistreat an enemy prisoner of war and stands by doing nothing, an investigation could determine the troop watching was complicit in the crime. It could look like the troop was supporting his friends.

In that scenario, the troop who stands by and watches the violation could end up in as much trouble as their colleagues.

Regardless of this possibility, failing to report

LOAC violations is punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Even a single failure can result in a court-martial conviction, a punitive discharge and confinement for two years.

To report any possible enemy LOAC violations, the first thing to do is notify a supervisor. For example, if the enemy painted a red cross on a weapons storage facility to make it look like a hospital tent, the reporter must be able to provide as much information as possible on the violation.

Troops should tell their supervisor details such as when they saw the facility, where it was, and if the facility was active. They must comply with all classified safeguards when relaying the information.

A tougher situation occurs if troops witness American forces committing a LOAC violation.

If a commanding officer ordered an NCO to beat an enemy prisoner of war, this type of violation must be reported.

The first step is to try to prevent the misconduct. Reporting the crime through the chain of command may not always be a realistic option. Troops can report the violation to security forces, the Office of Special Investigations, the inspector general, a judge advocate or a chaplain as soon as possible.

When reporting the offense to chaplains, remember

COMMON LOAC VIOLATIONS:

- Any use of chemical weapons.
- Deliberate attacks on medical facilities and/or personnel.
- Misuse of the Red Cross or Red Crescent.
- Maltreatment of enemy prisoners of war or detainees.
- Deliberately attacking civilians and/or civilian targets.
- Stealing personal effects from EPWs or enemy kills in action.
- Firing on people descending from a disabled aircraft; however, paratroopers are legitimate targets.
- Firing on neutral aircraft, vehicles, ships or personnel.
- Willful and improper use of protected buildings like schools, hospitals, museums and churches or localities for military purposes.
- Plunder or pillage of public or private property.
- Intentional use of civilian clothing or enemy uniforms to conceal military identity during combat.

to tell them it's OK to release the information.

Always keep in mind, no one can ever be ordered to commit a crime. Following the principles of LOAC will help all U.S. servicemembers do the right thing, while also helping to hold violators fully accountable.

Prisoners of war

LOAC addresses treatment of captured enemy soldiers

Basic Principle

The Law of Armed Conflict governs the treatment of captured soldiers. These laws make common sense, particularly if seen from the perspective of retribution. In any given conflict, our country or our allies may have soldiers captured by the enemy. If we treat enemy prisoners properly, our own captured troops should be treated properly in return.

Who are POWs

Only combatants (and some civilians accompanying a military force) are entitled to POW status and its special protections under the Law of Armed Conflict. Our country has a policy of extending LOAC POW protections to all captured people until their combatant status is determined.

Remember medical personnel and chaplains are not combatants. This means that they cannot properly be made prisoners of war. Instead, if they are captured, they are "retained" only so long as required to care for their troops. They are to be released as soon as possible - not held until the end of conflict.

POW Protections

Separate Accommodations

POWs should be housed away from the battle whenever possible. POW camps are not legal targets and should be clearly marked with a "PW" or "PG" to alert everyone of their non-target

U.S. Army photo by Spc. Derek Gaines

Soldiers with the 3rd Military Police Company, 3rd Battalion, 2nd Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division lead detainees into the courthouse in Falluja, Iraq, for the first day of trials since the war began, during Operational Iraqi Freedom June 24. One of the major objectives of the 3rd Military Company, since the end of the war in Iraq, is to assist the local police and judicial systems in rebuilding law and order in Falluja.

status. A separate camp therefore keeps POWs from being used as shields for war-fighting equipment and structures.

Safety and Security

POWs should be treated humanely. Handcuffs and blindfolds may be used when collecting and transporting POWs, but should removed when the POWs are secure. Military members are responsible for the safety and security of captured enemy soldiers and detained civilians. Violence, intimidation, threats and torture should not be used to gain information, push propaganda, or for any other reasons. POWs are only required to give their name, rank, date of birth, and serial number during interrogations, which are usually conducted by OSI agents.

Basic Human Rights

POWs should be treated humanely. POWs are entitled to food, clothing, and shelter. They may keep wedding rings, family photographs, and other personal property. Military items may be confiscated, including maps, mission plans and weapons.

Equal Medical Care

All wounded soldiers must receive medical attention based on the severity of their wounds, not their nationality. This may lead to a case where an enemy soldier is treated before an allied soldier. Civilized nations have agreed that saving lives takes precedence over national allegiances. This equality of treatment applies to both newly-captured soldiers and long-term POWs.

Limited Work

POWs can be required to work. The work, though, should not be dangerous or aid the war effort. This makes sense, given the need to protect POWs and the poor workmanship to be expected from captured soldiers.

Camp Discipline

POWs are required to follow standards of discipline. A POW can be punished for breaking a camp rule. POWs can even be court-martialed, but they are entitled to a fair trial and due process rights. These rights include an interpreter to explain the charges against them and assist in the proceedings.

UNEXPLODED ORDNANCE REPORTING

Identify: Stop moving. Look around. Identify the hazard(s) by observation only.

Mark: Take immediate action. Mark the area and evacuate others. Consider a minimum distance of 300 feet in all directions. Use protective measures to include evacuation, isolation and barricades. Evacuate the area around the UXO to a safe distance based upon local instructions and the size and the type of ordnance. When marking a UXO, use whatever material is available, but make sure the marker is visible from all directions in light and dark periods.

Report: Report the UXO to the unit control center or wing operations center by class and number or shape, color, size, etc.

Warning

☐ Do not try to remove anything that's on or near a UXO and never attempt to remove any part of one.

☐ Make all radio transmissions at least 25 meters away from a UXO hazard.

☐ Evacuation of people and/or equipment may not be possible. When this happens, isolate either your assets [personnel, equipment, and operations] from the UXO or isolate the UXO from your assets. EOD will provide vital information through communication channels.

Remember IEDs

Improvised Explosive Devices are "home-made" explosives and typically include some form of explosive, a fusing device, and a case. These weapons are particularly useful for terrorists and sleeper agents. Do not handle any object that appears suspicious and is not readily recognizable. Suspicious items include things that are not where they are supposed to be, left unattended and unclaimed, or hidden or camouflaged.

OF THE PRIDE PACK

Job: 8th Medical Operations Squadron medical readiness and training NCOIC

Duties: Reviews plans, training monitor, medical readiness staff function coordinator, and status of resources training system representative

Hometown: Hardin, Ill.

Follow-on: Ramstein Air Base, Germany

Hobbies: Exercising, reading, horseback riding, and shopping

Favorite music: Country

Last good movie you saw: “Old School”

Best thing you’ve done at Kunsan: Working medical readiness Tech. Sgt. Pamela Browning

“Having no medical readiness experience, Tech. Sgt. Pamela Browning reported to Kunsan, tackled an average program and made it stellar in nine months. She wrote the medical groups’ base support plan chapters without error and took over a disaster preparedness program, developing new check lists and ensuring compliance resulting in a ‘model’ program. Browning took the lead in the security manager program rapidly correcting two recurrent staff assisted visit deficiencies. Everything she touches turns to gold because of her hard work and dedication to duty. She epitomizes, and truly deserves, the pride of the pack award.”
